Dear Student

The week beginning Monday 1st June 2020 is going to be a reading week for everyone.

You have been amazingly receptive to remote learning and we feel it would be a good idea to let you read over your work, get your files in order and consolidate your learning at this point in the term. A reading week is what it says - a week where you spend time reading and re-capping your work. You can read around areas already studied and read ahead in preparation for new topics.

For many of you it has been a real challenge to keep up with the pace of work and we feel that having some time to catch up, reflect upon or go over work that you've completed would be very useful. Some of you might like to re-do some tasks that were completed quickly or sketchily and some of you might like the time to make revision notes or cards for some of the areas that you have covered.

We would like you to take this week seriously and respond accordingly - make the most of the week. As I've said before there is no time like the present! It is therefore important that you make good use of the time that you have so that when we return to school you are in a strong position to move forward with your studies.

I will be in touch again soon when I have some information about returning to school. I hope you have a restful half term.

We are all missing you and hope that we'll see you soon.

Take care and stay safe.

Best wishes
